What are the main elements of the OptixWORKS<sup>TM</sup> page?

In addition to both standard and proprietary race information (like program numbers, horse names, race conditions, finish positions, OptixNOTES<sup>TM</sup> grades, etc.), there are four main elements to the OptixWORKS<sup>TM</sup> detailed report:

- oC Grade: A letter-grade for the most recent workout series headed into the current race.
- OptixCLOCKER: Keywords that offer a snapshot of detail into the current workout pattern of a horse.
- Physical/Style: Keywords that describe the physicality of the horse in terms of its body type as well as his proficiency for a specific type of surface or distance.
- xC: Extended comments that provide any added description the clocker deems necessary.

What is the "oC Grade"?

The "oC Grade" is a letter-grade on the most recent workout series headed into a horse's current race. The letter-grades are color-coded, just like in OptixNOTES<sup>TM</sup>. The grading system ranges from the weakest grade of C to the strongest grade of A. Here is a more detailed explanation of each letter-grade:

- C: A horse that is truly struggling. Consider this a useful tool to eliminate a contender.
- C+: This is marginally more negative than a B-. It does not provide much separation.
- B-: This is a grade that offers a status-quo rating of a given individual in the a.m.
- B: A horse who is in good form, performing his a.m. duties with happy energy.
- B+: A horse who stands out from the majority. High-class horses can log these kinds of drills with more regularity. This grade can also signal a horse acting like he is ready to fire a top effort.
- A-/A: These are drills that are outliers. They don't occur very often, but when they do, they give us chills because they are a wow-type move that is normally reserved for graded-quality runners. Midnight Lute, Zenyatta, and Beholder are examples of horses that have received this level of grade.
